Proposed changes to PSB Rules

Greetings!

The PSB Board approved proposed changes to the existing Rules regarding uniforms for commissioned and non-commissioned officers. The last revision eroneously left out uniform requirements for the non-commissioned officers. The proposed change reads:

All commissioned and non commissioned private security officers shall, at a minimum, display on their outermost garment the name of the company by which the officer is employed, the word "Security," and the last name of the security officer. The items shall be of a size, style, shape, design, and type that are clearly visible to a reasonable person under normal conditions.

Further discussion addressed methods of displaying the required information. The company name, last name of the officer and the word "Security" may be placed on a soft or hard badge. Other appropriate methods of displaying the information include hanging from a lanyard or printed on a pocket protector.
